LITTLE MICHAEL JOHN O' SHEA.

When the pigs are in the garden, or the cows are in the stubble,
When poor Larry's eyes are blackened, or the apples go astray –
'Tisn't far I need be looking for the one who made the trouble,
Sure, I know ye, little Michael John O' Shea!

You've a new trick ev'ry morning, and you plague me past believing,
Though there's Father Hegan telling me it's just your bit of play;
With your eyes like dewy pansies, sure the saints you'd be deceiving,
But I know ye, little Michael John O' Shea!

Och! no peace at all I'm getting till you're safe in bed by seven,
And I've scrubbed ye and I've patched ye for another weary day;
Sure you'll always earn a beating, and you'll never go to heaven;
You're a villain, little Michael John O' Shea!

Through the night you're sweetly smiling, for you feel no pang of sorrow,
As you cuddle down by Larry in the innocentest way,
Tho' it's plain you're only dreaming of worse mischief for the morrow,
Yet, God bless ye! little Michael John O' Shea!
