The first system of music consists of two vocal staves at the top, each with a treble clef and a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). Both staves contain whole rests for the first five measures. Below the vocal staves is a piano accompaniment consisting of a grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The piano part begins with a series of chords and moving lines in both hands, primarily using eighth and quarter notes.

The second system continues the musical piece. It features two vocal staves with lyrics and a piano accompaniment. The lyrics for both parts are: "Fare-well ! fare-well to the smil - ing year ! Fare-well to the". The piano accompaniment continues with similar rhythmic patterns, including eighth and quarter notes.

The third system of music includes two vocal staves with lyrics and a piano accompaniment. The lyrics for both parts are: "joy - ous birds ! For hush'd is their mu - sic we held . . so". The piano accompaniment continues with eighth and quarter notes.

The fourth system of music includes two vocal staves with lyrics and a piano accompaniment. The lyrics for both parts are: "dear, Their car - ols that seem'd like words ! The song - sters we". The piano accompaniment continues with eighth and quarter notes.

PIANC.
♩ = 108.

The piano introduction is in B-flat major, 2/4 time. It begins with a forte (f) dynamic. The right hand features a series of ascending and descending eighth-note runs, with some notes marked with fingerings (1, 2, 3, 1, 2, 3) and accents. The left hand plays a steady eighth-note accompaniment. A pedaling instruction 'Ped.' is shown at the bottom.

This system contains the vocal entries for the Soprano and Contralto, and the beginning of the piano accompaniment. The vocal parts enter with the lyrics "When No-ven - ber winds are". The piano accompaniment continues with its eighth-note pattern. Pedaling instructions 'Ped.' are present at the bottom.

This system continues the vocal and piano parts. The vocalists sing "blow - ing Harsh - ly . . o'er the lea,". The piano accompaniment provides harmonic support. Pedaling instructions 'Ped.' are present at the bottom.

This system concludes the vocal and piano parts. The vocalists sing "When the fag - got fire is glow - ing,". The piano accompaniment continues until the end of the system. Pedaling instructions 'Ped.' are present at the bottom.

GAUL'S PASTORAL CANTATA RUTH.

BIRMINGHAM DAILY GAZETTE.

"That the idyllic story of Ruth is one admirably adapted for artistic illustration is unquestionable, and poets, painters, and musicians have over and over again made it a subject for the exercise of their talents, and we have no hesitation in saying that in its poetical and musical treatment by Mr. Oxenford and our townsman it has been invested with increased interest. A notice of the work of the musician will make sufficiently plain to our readers the manner in which the subject has been dealt with by the librettist; but we must not neglect to notice that Mr. Oxenford's verses are smooth and free from expressions unsuitable for union with music. The score contains fourteen numbers, some of them so sub-divided as to make the actual number of movements twenty-five. The time occupied in performance of the entire cantata is about one hour. The principal characters are Naomi (contralto), Ruth (soprano), Orpah (soprano), and Boaz (bass); and there are choruses of elders, handmaidens, reapers, and others. The cantata opens with a short instrumental introduction, in a pastoral style, in E flat major. A narrative chorus, 'A grievous famine smote the land,' somewhat similar in manner follows, and then a recitative and air for Naomi, in A flat, the air, 'O gracious Lord,' being distinguished by simple sweetness and harmonic purity. The narrative is then continued by a short chorus in C minor, 'They lifted up their voice,' to which succeeds a canonical trio for Naomi, Ruth, and Orpah, a really beautiful movement, which without reference to its position in Mr. Gaul's work, may be commended to the notice of families in which part-music for female voices is sought. The next number of the score is an air, 'Entreat me not to leave thee,' which, our readers may remember, was published in a separate form about three years ago, and then favourably noticed by us. To this follows a dialogue chorus, with a solo passage for Naomi, characteristically varied in expression, the concluding passages to the words 'Weep no more' forming a pleasing and effective ending to the first part of the work. We ought to have already mentioned that the first part of Mr. Gaul's 'Ruth' is entitled 'Sorrow.' With the beginning of the second part, entitled 'Joy,' the composer has adopted a more light and cheerful style. The scene changes to the harvest fields of Boaz, and in a chorus of reapers, in G major, we meet with some writing which cannot fail in pleasing. The female and male departments of the choir are sometimes employed separately, the sopranos, tenors, and basses being at times sub-divided, and at times combined in four-part harmony, while the accompaniments enhance the pastoral effect by the frequent repetition of a charming melodic figure. The three following numbers are devoted to a short chorus, and to airs and recitatives for Ruth, Naomi, and Boaz, in which the interest is well maintained, one especially, 'Let me hie unto the field,' being remarkably taking in its themes. Succeeding movements worthy of special notice are a duet in G, 'With joyous heart' (not unlike Spohr in manner), a choral, 'Look down, O Lord,' a wedding chorus, and a final chorus, 'Rejoice! for blessings round us fall,' containing fugal passages and strains in full harmony. In reading the score of Mr. Gaul's new cantata, we are compelled to acknowledge that there is a gratifying exhibition of individuality as regards style. We occasionally meet with passages that might have been written by Gounod or by Spohr, but our townsman has ideas that are his own solely, and the ideas in his new 'Ruth' cantata are always well treated. The music is varied and characteristic of the subject it illustrates. Pieces such as our townsman's Opus 34 are much wanted, and we believe that when the 'Ruth' cantata is heard in our Town Hall it will be at once accepted as a valuable addition to our stock of music suitable for performance by fairly advanced and advancing societies."

EASTERN DAILY PRESS.

"The music is melodious and winning, and descriptive of the subjects under treatment. The librettist (Mr. Edward Oxenford) has been careful to give the utmost opportunity for variety in musical treatment, the sorrowful character of the first part being relieved by the joyful nature of the second. The latter opens with a chorus of reapers (very pleasingly treated), and later on is introduced a prayer at nightfall, in the shape of a very effective choral, 'Look down, O Lord, from realms above,' leading to an instrumental intermezzo, descriptive of daybreak, followed by a spirited wedding chorus, 'Hark! the cymbals clash,' all favourable occasions for the display of the composer's powers of imagination and dramatic colouring. The cantata, which deserves to be well known, is to be performed in Birmingham Town Hall, on five consecutive nights, in October next."

BIRMINGHAM DAILY MAIL.

"The music is, generally speaking, easy, and there is no attempt, except in the last number, to approach difficult contrapuntal writing. In this Mr. Gaul has, no doubt, exercised a sound discretion, and if he has exercised repression in this respect and planned and executed a work of such dimensions as will immediately commend itself to societies of moderate capabilities, he has the satisfaction of feeling that he is legislating for a felt want. This self-abnegation is all the more praiseworthy when one inspects the clever treatment of the fugue in the final chorus, 'Your voices raise in songs of praise.'"

BIRMINGHAM WEEKLY DART.

"Bright, tuneful, fresh, and musicianly—this work will be a great favourite, and will add to Mr. Gaul's reputation. The second part will be liked better than the first; it opens in the harvest field, and here the real idyl begins, and with it the charm and grace and freshness of Mr. Gaul's inspiration. The maidens' chorus, bright as the morning it greets, and the men's robust and vigorous reply, well introduce the fresh and melodious joy-breathing music of 'Ruth,' the chastened yet hopeful address of Naomi, and the hearty generous welcome of Boaz. 'Nightfall' is the title of the lovely choral that follows, and it is so good that, like Oliver Twist, we are almost tempted to ask for more, but for so much that is good besides. Apparently considering that wedding marches have been done to death, Mr. Gaul gives us what is to all intents and purposes a choral march, and with a powerful bass to attack the syncopations with vigour, it would excellently fill its purposes without instrumental aid. The condensed score forms an effective and original march for separate performance. The work closes with a short but spirited chorus, 'Rejoice, for blessings round us fall,' which will bear comparison with anything Mr. Gaul has written. An effective fugal passage carefully worked out, but not overdone, is inserted between strains of joyful acclamation of considerable freshness and vigour. A musician's writing, like his voice, cannot fail to have a ring of its own, and the composer's numerous readers will recognise some characteristic progressions on pages 32 and 38."

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

A. R. GAUL'S CANTATA "JOAN OF ARC"

PRODUCED WITH GREAT SUCCESS BY THE BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

ATHENÆUM.

"An advance on the earlier work, 'The Holy City.' . . . The choruses are written with much knowledge of effect, and an 'Ave Maria' and the final chorus of the 'Spirit Voices' may be named as really charming."

LONDON FIGARO.

"Bound to be widely taken up, doubtless to attain which end the composer has employed but three soloists, and has given a more than usually large degree of importance to the choral work. . . . The 'Ave Maria' is singularly beautiful."

DAILY NEWS.

"Obviously written with a special view to the requirements of choral societies, and likely to become highly popular."

REFEREE.

"Calculated to delight performers and listeners, being full of melody and taking effects."

WESTERN TIMES.

"The Exeter Oratorio Society last night achieved a brilliant success, and it may safely be said, without fear of exaggeration, that never before have they performed a work more satisfactory to themselves or more interesting to the audience than 'Joan of Arc.'"

THE SHIELDS DAILY NEWS.

"One of the most delightful Concerts ever given by the South Shields Choral Society was that of last evening, when the principal piece was 'Joan of Arc.' We cannot speak too highly of Mr. Gaul's work, which is of the most interesting description, and will doubtless soon be a favourite with choral societies."

LEAMINGTON SPA COURIER.

"St. Paul's Choral Society brought their season to a close with a performance in the Town Hall of 'Joan of Arc.' The Cantata, both in verse and music, is essentially fascinating and contains all the elements necessary to make it one of the standard works for performance by musical societies, the choral writing and orchestration being simply charming."

TEWKESBURY REGISTER.

"The Conductor of the Philharmonic Society is to be congratulated on his selection of a Cantata possessing such attractive music as that which goes to make 'Joan of Arc' what it undoubtedly is—viz., the best work I remember having heard in Tewkesbury."

NORWICH DAILY PRESS.

"By the invitation of the Head Mistress of the High School, a large company assembled to hear a performance of 'Joan of Arc.' There is probably no living English composer who has obtained more popularity with provincial choral societies than Mr. A. R. Gaul. His sacred Cantata, 'The Holy City,' is more extensively known than any other modern English composition of a similar character, and 'Joan of Arc' has already been successfully performed in London and many of the largest provincial towns. Mr. Gaul's writing is characterised by the most perfectly neat workmanship and spontaneity, combined with a never-failing resource of melodic invention."

CRYSTAL PALACE REPORTER.

"The music throughout is of a very high order, and full of beauty and interest, so much so that it is hardly possible to single out any numbers for special praise. The various movements are widely contrasted in style, in some considerable dramatic power being manifest, but all overflow with melody, and there is a happy absence of the restlessness of tonality which disfigures so many modern works. The vocal parts, whether for solo or chorus, are written within the range of average vocalists, and are therefore grateful alike to the singers and hearers. The Cantata is a credit to English art, . . . one of the most interesting works yet given by the Anerley Society."

SHEFFIELD INDEPENDENT.

"Will further enhance the reputation of the composer of 'The Holy City,' as a writer of bright, melodious, attractive, and musicianly Cantatas."

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON HERALD.

"In 'Joan of Arc,' particularly in the latter part, there are some exquisite passages—some charming descriptive pieces. The lovely 'Hark! thy spirit voices call,' carried one away in the spirit into veritable realms of dreamland, and the chorus, 'Fret not thyself to-day' is picturesquely beautiful, graceful, and effective."

THE WESTERN NEWS, December 6, 1888.

"Few cantatas are as rich in chaste melodies, charming choruses, and exquisite orchestration as Alfred R. Gaul's 'Joan of Arc,' performed for the first time in Plymouth by the Vocal Association in the Guildhall last evening."

THE WESTERN DAILY MERCURY, December 6, 1888.

"Proved an unqualified success. . . . the bulk of the Cantata is allotted to the chorus. In fact, the choir of this Association has seldom had such a good opportunity for giving their sterling worth a good display."

LEEDS MERCURY, November 7, 1888.

"Drew forth enthusiastic plaudits. . . . Of the Cantata, as interpreted last evening (in the Town Hall, Leeds, with a band and chorus of 250 performers), it is impossible to speak in terms of anything but praise. Solos and choruses alike are full of melody, while the orchestration is descriptive to a degree. For each of the principal vocalists there is one song that singles itself out, and each received an encore."

HERTS AND CAMBRIDGE REPORTER.

"The theme is one of the most romantic in the pages of history. In the earlier and poetic passages, there is something of the charm of Sir Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen.' The last chorus is set to music which would be not unworthy of the great masters."

LIVERPOOL COURIER.

"Must enhance the high reputation of its composer."

HUDDERSFIELD EXAMINER.

"The inspiration of a highly-refined musician. . . . The Cantata is even a more masterly and beautiful work than 'The Holy City.'"

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE DAILY CHRONICLE.

"No more charming Cantata than 'Joan of Arc' could have been chosen. It abounds in delicious music. There is not a tedious note in it."

BRADFORD OBSERVER.

"Gives the listener a vivid and realistic impression, its attractiveness being continuous instead of spasmodic."

BIRMINGHAM DAILY TIMES.

"It would not be surprising if it attained to even the almost phenomenal popularity of 'The Holy City'; contains a similar wealth of melody and effective part-writing."

BIRMINGHAM DAILY GAZETTE.

"Reading the score convinces us that it is our townsman's greatest production. . . . Could have been originated by none but a born melodist."

BIRMINGHAM DAILY POST.

"A distinct advance upon Mr. Gaul's previous work in cantata form. . . . A constant flow of exquisite melodies and effective choral writing."

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN.

"A thoroughly melodious work, and should find favour with choral societies. It is not difficult to sing, and contains sufficient variety to keep up the interest to the end."
