Play fully.

quite too young to know her will,' The folks say to each o-ther; But if you tru-ly love me still, Why— go and ask my mother. Go, go, go, go,

Go and ask my mother.

2.

I've seen you dance with city girls,
And flirt with country cousins;
Praise Julia and her raven curls,
And glances throw by dozens.
I thought it very strange, and vow'd
I'd look out for another;
But, when you smiled, my anger bow'd,
So— go and ask my mother.

3.

I'm told there's care in married life,
That all the joy's in courting;
When young men have secured a wife,
They say their vows were sporting.
I won't believe what old maids say,
If you won't choose another;
You've bother'd me so much to-day,
Do— go and ask my mother.
